Boulder City: Then and Now

Boulder City is a beautiful high oasis in the desert (elevation 2500) with green lawns and clean, tree-shaded streets overlooking Lake Mead and the Lake Mead National Recreation Area. The city is five miles from Lake Mead, eight miles from Hoover Dam and 21 miles south of Las Vegas, the "Entertainment Capital of the World."

The City of Boulder City is known as the city that housed over 4,000 workers during the construction of Hoover Dam, which lasted from 1931 to 1935. The town is still home to many of the original Dam workers, fondly called "31ers" and their families. The city was supervised and regulated by the Bureau of Reclamation and all land in and around the city was owned by the federal government.

In 1958, the federal government passed the Boulder City Act and established an independent municipal government, the City of Boulder City.

Under the act, the federal government turned over the existing home site, approximately 33 square miles of land, and the utility system to residents. The City Charter, approved by the residents, prohibits gaming which makes Boulder City unique as the only city in Nevada where gaming is illegal.

Boulder City's present population of 16,208 provides a quiet, small-town atmosphere found nowhere else in Southern Nevada. More importantly, it offers a welcome contrast and a dramatic alternative to the often frantic Las Vegas lifestyle.

The community takes great pride in its historic past and abounds with cultural opportunities. It has a state-of-the-art library and a wealth of interesting and unique shops located in its historic downtown district along Nevada Way. Boulder City also sponsors numerous special events and festivals. For instance, the annual Art in the Park and Spring Jamboree celebrations are recognized as the foremost art exhibitions in the Las Vegas metropolitan area.

An extensive network of parks provides visitors with recreational opportunities as varied as soccer, baseball, motocross, horseback riding, model airplane flying, car and boat racing, BMX competitions, golf, hiking, off-road biking, fishing, water-skiing, diving, shooting clubs, ATVs and ziplining.

Within Boulder City there are 71 acres of landscaped park and plaza areas, 36 miles of hiking and mountain bike trails and year-round swimming, racquetball, shuffleboard, tennis and basketball courts (indoor and outdoor), picnic tables, lighted grass athletic fields and kiddie parks. There are two municipal golf courses – an 18-hole course and a new 27-hole course. There are art galleries and specialty shops, and quaint sidewalk dining in the booming Historic District.

The municipal airport features daily flights to the Grand Canyon and skydiving. For a good hike check out the River Mountain Trail-head off Hwy. 93 or the Tunnel Trail located at Lakeshore Drive near Lake Mead Visitor Center. Or simply enjoy a brisk bike ride along the nearby paths.

Early in the 20th century spring and summer runoff, fed by snowpack in the Rocky Mountains, caused massive destruction by floods along the 1,400-mile-long Colorado River and eroded millions of tons of valuable topsoil for the farms and ranches along its banks. In drier years, the Colorado's flow slowed to almost a trickle, destroying crops and livestock.

After a series of studies on how to harness the power of this river, the federal government passed the Boulder Canyon Project Act in 1928, just weeks after the election of Herbert Hoover. This authorized construction of a dam and canal to control flooding and supply water to the regions of California, Nevada and Arizona.

Thousands of American workers, unemployed as a result of the nation's stock market collapse in 1929, packed up and headed West for a job building the Boulder Dam (as it was known until 1947) in the Black Canyon, on the Arizona-Nevada border. Before the dam could be built, the workers had to divert the wild Colorado River away from the construction site. They blasted tunnels right through the canyon walls and the Colorado River gushed through these diversion tunnels for the next five years while more than 5,000 men toiled in the dry, harsh canyon bottom. They sometimes worked in temperatures above 120 degrees in the shade, for a day's wage of $4. Officially, 96 people died building the dam (none are actually buried in the dam, despite a legend to the contrary.)

The dam, dedicated by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in September 1935, was completed in less than five years – ahead of schedule and under budget. The Bureau of Reclamation started conducting tours through the dam and power plant in 1937. Today, close to one million visitors a year tour the dam.

No other politician was as instrumental in the successful completion of this project than Herbert Hoover. A dozen years later, President Harry S. Truman signed Public Law 43, restoring the name of Hoover Dam.

The actual cost of the dam, the All-American Canal, the town of Boulder City, highways, railroads and other work projects, was $165 million. The dam itself had a final price tag of nearly $60 million.

Hoover Dam is the second highest dam in the country and the 18th highest in the world. It is 660 feet thick at its base – as big as two football fields end to end. There is enough concrete (4.5 million cubic yards) in the dam to build a two-lane road from Seattle, WA to Miami, FL. The dam is 726 feet tall, almost 200 feet taller than the Washington Monument. The reservoir, Lake Mead, has a capacity of 1.24 trillion cubic feet.

During peak periods of electrical demand, enough water runs through the generators to fill 15 average-size swimming pools (20,000 gallons each) in one second. Hoover Dam's delivery system provides water to more than 18 million people in Arizona, Nevada and California.

MORE INFORMATION:

Hoover Dam is 30 miles southeast of Las Vegas on US Highway 93, at the Nevada-Arizona border. The tour center opens at 9:00 AM and closes at 5:00 PM. (Pacific Time) daily except for Thanksgiving and Christmas. The visitors' center opens at 8:30 AM.

Recreational Activities

A desert area 2,500 feet above sea level doesn't usually evoke thoughts of rugged outdoor sports like mountain biking, nor does it bring to mind relaxing on the banks of a fresh water lake where fish abound. These two activities are but a small sampling of the many recreational pastimes available to visitors to Boulder City.

When it comes to recreation and outdoor activities, the residents of Boulder City do it all. In addition to the water sports available at nearby Lake Mead, the town is able to boast 36 miles of world-class mountain bike trails at Bootleg Canyon, just minutes away from any home in Boulder City. In September 2001, the International Mountain Biking Association named Bootleg Canyon an "EPIC Trail System," one of only 18 trails in the world with this distinction. While Bootleg Canyon brings thrills to mountain bikers, it is also a place of beauty for those who use the trails for walking, running and hiking.

Practically right in Boulder City's backyard, the sprawling Lake Mead National Recreation Area currently receives up to 10 million visitors annually, making it the most visited National Recreation Area in the United States.

Residents of Boulder City enjoy a wide variety of activities such as boating, camping, hiking, swimming, and year-round fishing in a setting of rugged mountains, desert washes, sheer cliffs and massive rock formations.

Best known for water recreation, Lake Mead is a top-rated destination for scuba diving, snorkeling, water skiing, sailboats, sailboards, boating and houseboating, to name a few. While the current drought has affected some areas drastically, Lake Mead really has not changed much. It has become even more interesting. Only twice in its history has the lake's level been as low. The chalky white "ring" is an interesting and stark contrast to the clear, deep blue water.

Hiking in the hills outside of Boulder City can be a rewarding experience for those who dare to explore. Bighorn sheep, mule deer, coyotes, kit foxes and bobcats are often seen in the mountains and valleys surrounding Lake Mead. Numerous trails lead to such places as abandoned mines, ancient Native-American encampments and villages and hideouts of the West's most notorious villains.

For those interested in soccer, baseball, softball, fishing, model boat sailing, BMX racing or skateboarding, the 80+ acres of transformed desert area that offers each and every one of these leisure interests is Boulder City's Veterans' Memorial Park. There is the 3.5-acre fishing pond, stocked with catfish in the summer and trout in the winter. Water from the fishing pond flows over a rock stream to the tranquil model boat pond. To the south of the ponds are two regulation-size soccer fields and to the south of the soccer fields are four ball fields.

Adjacent to Veterans' Memorial Park is the Boulder Creek Golf Club, which opened in January of 2003. There is also Boulder City Municipal Golf Course, located just across Buchanan Boulevard. Both courses have been recipients of Vegas Golfer Magazine's Fairway Awards. In 2004, Boulder City Municipal Golf Course received a Fairway Award in the category of "Best Bargain Course." 2004 was the third year in a row, Boulder Municipal received this award.

In 2004, Boulder Creek Golf Club received "Best Par 4, Desert Hawk #9," from the staff writers of the Vegas Golfer Magazine and "Best Bargain Course," voted by the magazine readers. The magazine stated, "Boulder Creek – a winner last year in the 'Best New Course' category, Boulder Creek chalks up another award as one of the most affordable courses, proving that a beautifully maintained design in Vegas needn't cost a car payment to play.

Because of the variety of recreational activities Boulder City has to offer, it will take more than one weekend to enjoy it all. Come visit the town to see first hand the bounty of pleasures packed within the borders of this green oasis in the desert.

Day Trips & Area Hiking Trails

RED ROCK CANYON

Red Rock Canyon is located approximately 40 miles west of Boulder City on Charleston Boulevard (also shown as Highway 159 on some maps). Spectacular desert cliffs, buttes and dramatic rock formations offer visitors a unique perspective of nature as well as the effects of erosion on petrified sand dunes. To the west, mountains rise to a colorful escarpment, formed along a fault zone with peaks over 8,000 feet, including huge cliffs and ravines composed of bands of grey, white and red rock, all heavily eroded. The wide empty plains beneath the hills are studded with Joshua trees and other desert plants, contributing to the spectacle.

After wet winters, the park's floral displays are stunning. Wildlife you may encounter includes roadrunners, red-tailed hawks, lizards, mice and squirrels, along with herds of wild burros, descendants of animals used by miners early this century.

There is a 13-mile one-way scenic drive within the park boundaries. Red Rock Vista affords the best overall view of the cliffs. The standard entry fee is $5 per vehicle. No camping is available.

valley derives its name from the massive red sandstone formations and the stark beauty of the Mojave Desert, and features 3,000-year old Native American petroglyphs and petrified wood. Popular activities include camping, hiking, and picnicking. Valley of Fire State Park has been home to many movie sets, including one of the Star Trek series and several prehistoric sagas. The park is open year-round and offers a full-scale visitor center with detailed exhibits.

The Valley of Fire makes for excellent auto touring with an outstanding network of roads allowing easy access to many features. The park is best accessed from the west entrance, off of Exit 75 on Interstate 15. The scenic road twists and turns for 32 miles to and through the park.

GRAND CANYON WEST

Only 2.5 hours from Boulder City, Grand Canyon West offers breathtaking panoramic experiences at the Grand Canyon's western rim. Owned by the Hualapai Tribe, Grand Canyon West is home to authentic attractions including The Skywalk glass bridge, Indian Village, Guano Point and The Hualapai Ranch.

The Skywalk opened in spring 2007, and visitors are able to walk on the first-ever cantilever shaped glass bridge that suspends more than 4,000 feet above the Colorado River.

VALLEY OF FIRE

Valley of Fire State Park, 65 miles north of Boulder City, is the Nevada State Park system's first park. The BOULDER CITY, a beautiful high oasis in the desert (elevation 2500) with green lawns and clean tree-shaded streets in Southern Nevada overlooking Lake Mead and the Lake Mead National Recreation Area. The city is 5 miles from Lake Mead, 8 miles from Hoover Dam and 21 miles south of Las Vegas, the "Entertainment Capital of the World."

BOULDER CITY is known as the town that built Hoover Dam and is still home to many of the original Dam workers, fondly called "31ers" and their families. It is unique to Nevada in that it is the only Nevada city that prohibits public gaming.

~ HISTORY ~
Boulder City is the city that was created for the construction of Hoover Dam. Once the dam was completed, the Federal government changed the basic function of the city to headquarter several agencies involved in the dam's water and power operations. All the land in and around the city was owned by the Federal government. In 1958, the Boulder City Act was passed, establishing an independent municipal government, turning over to the citizens 34.5 square miles of land; approximately four square miles are developed. In 1979, a controlled-growth ordinance was passed, which limits the number of residential and hotel/motel building permits issued each year. In 1995 the City acquired additional land, making our city limits encompass a total of 200 square miles.
