FAMILY OWNED AND OPERATED SINCE 1929

Dear Mill Valley residents, business owners and visitors,

The energy in the 94941 at the outset of summer is palpable – all of us are getting ready for summer, with families nearing the end of the school year, gearing up for a summer calendar full of an amazing array of great local events. We all know about the momentous Memorial Day weekend (May 22-25), with the Parade, the Mill Valley Volunteer Firefighter’s Association’s Pancake Breakfast and the Kiddo! Carnival and Community Celebration. Just one week later, we have one of Mill Valley’s iconic events, the 34th Annual Wine, Beer & Gourmet Food Tasting, benefiting the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce & Visitor Center and Kiddo! But while the beginning of the summer is packed, this year’s summer of fun rarely relents.

On June 14, Mill Valley becomes the epicenter of the running world as host of the Dipsea Race, the oldest trail race in the United States. That weekend, gypsy jazz fans flock to the Throckmorton Theatre for the annual DjangoFest.

There’s arguably no better local community gathering than the Arts Commission’s free Comedy in the Plaza event on June 17, with some of the best comedians in the business making us laugh hysterically.

The summer comes to a close with two free quintessential Mill Valley events. For four Sundays in August, the Arts Commission’s Concerts on the Plaza live music series celebrates its 30th Anniversary of providing the perfect summer soundtrack. And August 28, our free Movies in the Park series, a collaboration with the California Film Institute, kicks off in Old Mill Park with a screening of Maleficent, followed by Big Hero 6 on Sept. 25 and The Wizard of Oz on Oct. 16. Whether they make us want to eat drink, laugh, cry or dance, all of these events celebrate the natural beauty, artistic creativity and economic vibrancy that surround us here in Mill Valley. For us, this summer is all about community. We invite you to come to the events in our comprehensive calendar on page 16, rub elbows and share a laugh, a bite, a sip or a hip-shake with your neighbors and friends and revel in the small town character that makes this place so special!

Cheers to the Summer,

MV Moms Connect Through Their Kiddos, Launch Two of the Tastiest Businesses in Town

When Nicole Palmer and Leigh Judson recently needed a model to be on a promotional banner for their year-old Batter World pancake batter, they chose their friend Karen Olson's son Braden. The red-headed sixth grader is far from the only thing Palmer, Judson, Olson and friend Kristin Silmore have in common.

At the 34th Annual Wine, Beer & Gourmet Food Tasting on May 31 in downtown Mill Valley, the four moms will be showcasing Batter World and Carrot Top Treats, two of the tastiest businesses in the 94941 – and they have their kids to thank for it. The women are among the nearly 30 gourmet food purveyors participating in the event, along with more than 65 premium wineries, 11 breweries and 12 local restaurants and chefs.

Palmer and Judson, who met at the sandbox in Julius Kahn Playground in San Francisco where their respective kids were playing, are serving up Batter World, their pancake batter made with all-natural ingredients and sold fresh-frozen in a re-sealable pouch to preserve nutrients and taste.

In just a year since its inception, demand for Batter World has exploded – it's available at 90 stores, including Mill Valley Market, the longtime sponsor and curator of the landmark local event on May 31st event.

"Making pancakes from scratch is a hassle – and so is cleanup," Palmer says. "You can cook this batter on the griddle within minutes, and you feel like a hero in the morning."

Palmer, who lives in the Alto neighborhood, says Batter World's big break was connecting with distributor Tony's Fine Foods in Sacramento.

"Before that, we were just delivering it ourselves in our cars," she says with a laugh.

At a nearby table on May 31, Olson and Silmore will be dishing out their almost criminally tasty-yet-healthy Carrot Top Treats. The moniker hails from their red-headed sons, Oliver and Braden, who hit it off in kindergarten at Edna Maguire and have stayed friends ever since – as have their moms.

Carrot Top's fare at the May 31st Gourmet Food Tasting will include brownies, molasses whoopee pies, salted caramel and Oreo sugar cookies. The 2014 edition of the signature local event served as a coming-out party of sorts for Carrot Top Treats, as Mill Valley Market had just begun carrying their products.

Silmore and Olson, who hit it off over a love of baking, began exchanging recipes and eventually supplying school fundraisers and their kids' sporting events with their treats. When they proved a huge hit at a fundraiser for the Edna Maguire Garden in 2013, they decided to step it up. The pair took advantage of the then-fledgling Cottage Food Operations legislation signed into law by Gov. Jerry Brown, allowing home kitchens to be certified for legal sale of goods.

Now Silmore and Olson are striking a balance between spreading the word about their products without growing faster than they can handle right now. In addition to the Market, Carrot Top Treats are available at Juice Girl, where owner Melora Johnson can barely keep up with her customers' – mostly moms and Tam High and Middle School students – insatiable appetite for Carrot Top Treats. Scott Valley Swimming and Tennis Club and Coyote Coffee in Tam Junction also carry Carrot Top Treats, and Silmore and Olson have expanded into catering, even making treats for their realtor friends' open houses. "We're totally happy where the business is right now," Silmore says. "We're full-time moms, we love what we're doing with Carrot Top Treats and we're both still able to absolutely enjoy where we live."

Sponsored by Mill Valley Market since 1981, the 34th Annual Mill Valley Wine, Beer and Gourmet Food Tasting, returns to the Downtown Plaza on May 31 (1–4pm), with proceeds going to the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce and Kiddo!, the Mill Valley Schools Community Foundation.

This special North Bay event brings together all the best aspects of California living into one exciting afternoon set against the backdrop of beautiful Mill Valley. The Mill Valley Wine & Gourmet Food Tasting features wine from more than 60 wineries and fine craft beers from 10 breweries and food from nearly 30 food purveyors and 12 local restaurants and chefs.

Known for a wide selection of hard to find wines, this event is not to be missed by anyone who is a fan of fine crafted beverages and foods. The event is produced by Steven Restivo Event Services.

The event also features complimentary valet bicycle parking, provided by the Marin County Bicycle Coalition and sponsored by Tam Bikes in Mill Valley.

Inspirations, Phenoms and Throwbacks – Four Sundays of Concerts in the Plaza to Make You Shake Those Hips

On Sunday August 2 and the trio of Sundays that follow it, a 30-year-old Mill Valley tradition continues with the Mill Valley Arts Commission's Concerts in the Plaza.

The events – free and open to the public on the Depot Plaza – feature two bands each on the first four Sunday afternoons in August. Concerts on the Plaza begin at 2 pm Sunday, with each band playing for 45 minutes.

This year's lineup runs the gamut, from emerging starlets to local vets, and covers a wide range of sonic territory. Here they are:

Sunday, August 2, 2015

The Tik Tax – 2–2:45pm

Founded in September of 2010 and specializing in 80's songs made by female musicians – The GoGo's, Pat Benatar, Bangles, Joan Jett etc. – this group features Lena Kyle on bass, Zoe Vavrek on keyboards, Samantha Shapiro on drums and vocals and Hayley Newman on guitar and lead vocals. The Fairfax and San Anselmo area high schoolers have performed at The Sleeping Lady, Cascade Canyon School Variety Show, KickIt Soccer Fest, The Yes Fest, Earth Day Marin, Octoberfest, The Manor Winter Faire, The EcoFest at the Fairfax Festival, the Marin County Fair, Hopmonk, Novato and more.

Todd Morgan & the Emblems – 3–3:45pm

This Sacramento-based band has truly unearthed a new and exciting rock, melding every faction and era of American music, from early blues to present day pop and rock, along with healthy splashes of soul and R&B, complete with exhilarating piano, vocal work and stage performance. The band's history dates back to 2007, when they emerged, primarily performing and writing songs in the style of 50's rock. Vocalist, songwriter, pianist and guitarist Todd Morgan felt the need to create and develop his own style and sound, and in 2012, this resulted in the release of the second album, Reality, which far outsold its predecessor. Todd and his band, which consists of guitarist Patrick Owen, bassist Jessica Luna and drummer Cameron Womack, returned to the studio in 2014 to record a new album loaded with 15 original songs, all penned by Morgan. The new album, Sweet Pretender, is set for release in 2015.

Sunday, August 9

Linda Imperial – 2–2:45pm

The Linda Imperial Band consists of six dedicated musicians, who's only mission is to give you a smokin', red hot, hard-driving rock & roll blues sound. Fronted by the powerful pipes of singer Linda Imperial, the band features Linda Imperial, Steve Valverde, Peter Harris, Doug Freedman, David Kaffinetti and David Freiberg, the multi-instrumentalist who holds the singular distinction of having been associated with more of the original San Francisco bands than any individual, boasting membership in Quicksilver Messenger Service, Jefferson Airplane (briefly) and Jefferson Starship.

Lorin Rowan & Caribbean Bleu – 3–3:45pm

Fronted by Lorin Rowan, singer/songwriter, multi-instrumentalist, founding member of the Marin County rock-reggae band The Edge and a member of the legendary Rowan Brothers musical family from the musical family the Rowan Brothers, is performing at Concerts on the Plaza with his dynamic Caribbean Bleu band. A fusion of Americana meets World Music, Latin, Jamaica, Cuba, Brazil and beyond, Caribbean Bleu's sound is "Jimmy Buffet-meets-Paul Simon-meets-Sting meets-Bob Marley," Rowan says. Band members Eric McCann, Matt Willis and Ken Emerson have played with the likes of Phil Lesh, Jerry Garcia, Bonnie Raitt, Clarence Clemmons (Bruce Springsteen's band), Taj Mahal, Todd Rundgren, The Rowan Brothers, The Drifters and The Shirelles

Sunday, August 16, 2015

Til Dawn – 2–2:45pm

`Til Dawn, the Youth in Arts A Cappella ensemble, is an advanced vocal music program for motivated young artists. `Til Dawn celebrates the value of the arts, encourages positive messages about meaningful social issues, and inspires children of all ages. The group performs a mix of rock, pop, blues, jazz and soul standards and contemporary hits, in addition to original songs by group members. The group rehearses twice a week at Youth in Arts and participates in three weekend retreats throughout the year. They maintain an extensive year-round performance schedule, singing at schools, community events and charitable benefits. On May 31, `Til Dawn has a full length concert at San Domenico School in San Anselmo to highlight each of the individual students and celebrate the seniors.

Swing Fever – 3–3:45pm

Since 1978, Swing Fever has been a swinging staple in the Bay Area, California and across the western United States. The band spent 14 years on the California Arts Council's touring roster, doing several hundred concerts around the state. They have played two Monterey Jazz Festivals and countless others as well as four San Francisco Black & White Balls, too many prestigious performances to list. They are lucky enough to have Denise Perrier, who is one of the best jazz vocalists anywhere. Rhythmic, romantic, torrid and witty...this is our music and we're crazy for it. Watch out, you may catch Swing Fever too.

Sunday, August 23, 2015

Olivia Davis – 2–2:45pm

With her debut album, Olivia Davis holds her own alongside classic singer-songwriters by creating her own blend of folk, alt-country, and American roots music. Honest and well crafted, these songs reflect deeply personal stories, yet remain universally relatable. Olivia was born and raised in the Bay Area, and was diagnosed with Cystic Fibrosis when she was one year old. Her struggle with the disease has provided an inspiration for her song writing, and she explores themes such as claiming one's identity and celebrating the preciousness of life. She has been faced with difficult challenges and life-and-death realities at an unusually young age, and these experiences add depth and wisdom to her lyrics. Her music resonates with hopeful optimism, and her story is an inspiration.

Ain't Misbehavin' – 3–3:45pm

Ain't Misbehavin' performs for Bay Area audiences of all ages, with an eclectic variety of styles from Vintage Swing to contemporary numbers, including ballads, bluegrass, originals, and more. Featuring mellow harmonies and hot fiddlin' from laid back to joint jumpin', paying homage to Fats Waller, the Sons of the Pioneers, The Boswell Sisters, Johnny Mercer, Cole Porter, Hoagy Carmichael, as well as originals and bluegrass. The band features Mill Valley native Phil Richardson on fiddle and banjo and Novato residents Barry Ernst on lead vocal, guitar and washboard and Annie Ernst on upright bass, harmony vocal and guitar.

Envision Extraordinary

We do. Every day.

Vision

It's the key differentiator between Pacific Union and all other real estate firms. We envision what can be, we set goals, and we attain extraordinary results for our clients.
