Telling Our Story

Hello and welcome to the community of Grand Forks, North Dakota and East Grand Forks, Minnesota.

Prepare to be dazzled. That's our best advice.

Why? Because we've dazzled ourselves. In the last five years our economy has become more diverse, new missions have come to the Air Force Base, the medical community has grown larger and more competitive, shopping options have expanded and eating options have exploded.

Even the landscape has been remade. It's still flat but downtown has been redone with architecturally striking new buildings joining venerable historic structures. New residences and new businesses have brought new life to the heart of the community. The university campus has been transformed with new construction and longer vistas. If you don't believe it, take a walk on campus. You'll be dazzled, and that's a promise.

We have built one of America's best small cities. We're genuinely proud of what we've done. We live here and we love it.

Sure, it gets cold here in the winter. But. And we're used to it. We've found so many ways to enjoy it. And our warm, beautiful summers can't be beat. Having four seasons is an asset not everyone gets to enjoy.

It's true that the wind blows.

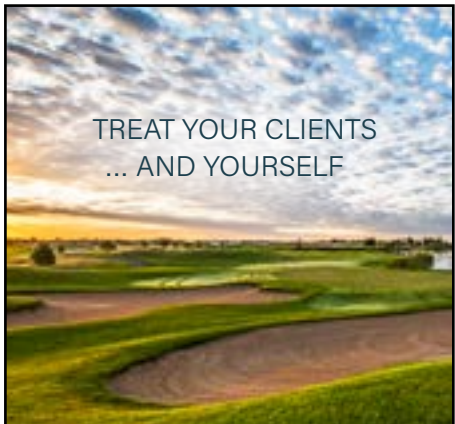

It's also true that our streets are safer than almost any other metropolitan area in the United States and our air is cleaner here than almost anywhere in the country. We thank the wind for that.

There is a lot to do in the winter, spring, summer and fall; both indoors and out. You'll find that out.

We have built one of America's best small cities and we are making it better every day.

How did this happen?

The grand forks -- les grandes fourches -- have been here since the glaciers receded and Lake Agassiz drained to the sea, leaving us the incredibly rich Red River Valley. The place where the Red Lake River joins the Red has been a meeting place for centuries, and when European settlement began in this region, it quickly grew to be an important regional center. Important institutions were built here. The University of North Dakota was founded and named and produced its first graduates before North Dakota became a state. It has always been a critical part of the city. Grand Forks is not just a city with a college in it. It is a college town. It is a military town, too. Grand Forks Air Force Base was established here when the community was beginning to think about the centennial of its settlement. Today, it is morphing into the nation's first center for research into utilization of unmanned aerial systems. Grand Forks is also a medical town, with an important regional hospital, several other health care establishments and the state's medical school -- now occupying a magnificent new building on the UND campus. Of course, Grand Forks is also a shopping town, and not just for those of us who live here. It is a destination for Canadian shoppers looking for a weekend getaway. They help give Grand Forks a range of goods and services, an abundance of hotel rooms, a variety of eateries and entertainment and cultural options that you might not expect in a city of this size. Now, none of this alone distinguishes Grand Forks from other progressive places. There is something extra here, and it grew out of a crisis.

In April 1997, our rivers rose against us. The resulting flood affected almost every structure in the two cities. Downtown Grand Forks suffered a major fire that left two dozen buildings in ruins.

The flood did not just test us.
It tempered us.

We built a flood protection system and created a huge park along our rivers. We rebuilt our businesses. We added facilities for sports and entertainment -- to the point that all of us could get together in just two of these new buildings. We had a lot of help, of course, and we are deeply grateful for all of it.

We didn't stop with building.

We redesigned the city government. We cut away layers that had accumulated over decades. We rethought regulations and reduced the number of elected members of the council. We also learned how to work together. We had to. Our cities were at stake.

We are proud of what we've built.

Equally important, we're proud of how we did it. The Grand Sky Initiative is a good example. This enterprise involves two states, two colleges, local city and county governments and the U.S. Air Force. This cooperation has brought opportunity as unmanned systems assume their role in commerce, industry and agriculture.

Perhaps this new field interests you.

Perhaps you're in the vanguard of companies large and small that are finding new ways to process the agricultural abundance of the Red River Valley.

Perhaps you've come to join one of the architectural, engineering and environmental firms that are helping direct the state's oil boom.

Maybe you've come to teach or to study or to heal.

Brain power and cooperation have made innovation flourish here.

We expect to grow. We'd like you and your family to grow with us.

This is an exciting time in our community.

This is the truth.

It's hard to know where to start when you want to brag about Grand Forks and East Grand Forks. It's the robust economy that makes everything else possible of course, and we could start there. ■

Defending Our Freedom

Grand Forks Air Force Base is home to about 3,300 Air Force personnel and their families.

But there's something else that's more important.

Defending Our Freedom

Something that makes economic success possible. Something that undergirds our lives and our freedoms.

National security, of course.

The Grand Forks area is mission ready.

Grand Forks has a long military tradition with the United States Air Force and the North Dakota National Guard. Grand Forks Air Force Base is 14 miles west of the city. The National Guard Armory is at the western edge of town, visible from the interstate highway.

Grand Forks Air Force Base has a worldwide mission, and it has been a player in the Global War on Terror. Global Hawk – the big drones – are stationed here. The 319th Reconnaissance Wing is at home here, but on any given day many of its 2,500 active duty personnel are deployed elsewhere.

Grand Forks Air Force Base has several tenants, including the United States Custom and Border Protection, which operates his own fleet of drones. Plus, base personnel provide support to the 10th Space Warning Squadron at Cavalier Air Force Station, which is about 90 miles northwest of Grand Forks.

Space Development Agency (SDA) controls the Department of Defense Low Earth orbit satellite from GFAFB. They train all of the operators there too.

New missions at the base will increase its strategic importance. These include Point Defense Battle Lab, a counter drone development mission, a new intelligence, surveillance mission and a low-earth-orbit satellite mission. Various other space and cyber missions are being considered for location here. So, you may not see many planes flying overhead, but be assured that Grand Forks Air Force Base is critical to national security.

It's clear that Grand Forks Air Force Base plays a big role in the development of remotely piloted aircraft, also known as unmanned aerial systems or drones, and this extends to development of these systems for commercial use.

Grand Forks and the Grand Forks Air Force Base are on the cutting edge of these developments. The UAS business park on the base, called Grand Sky, is the first in the nation. Grand Sky is a specialized location for testing and operating this new technology and it provides opportunities for partnership in research, testing and training. Grand Sky's multi-tenant building is now full. General Atomics operates UAS training facilities in the UAS park.

Northrop Grumman is converting the retiring Global Hawks to a mobile test range to test U.S. hypersonic missile and other top secret platforms. This testing will be done by the Test Resource Management Center (TRMC) using the Range Hawks.

General Atomics operates its Range Reaper program at Grand Sky and all General Atomics training programs are headquartered out of Grand Sky facilities.

This opportunity comes after hard work and lots of cooperation.

The University of North Dakota and Northland Community and Technical College immediately got involved. UND offered the world's first academic program for UAS training and Northland added courses to prepare students for careers in the industry.

A local group, the Base Retention and Investment Committee (BRIC) involving governments and civic organizations, pushed the idea forward, negotiated terms for the lease of 217 acres on the Air Force Base and attracted companies who want to locate here.

Cooperation between the community and Grand Forks Air Force Base is not new. Twice, in 1998 and 2005, our communities won the Abilene Trophy. That's the hardware that Air Mobility Command presents to recognize community-based relationships and support.

Grand Forks and Grand Forks Air Force Base have had a strong partnership for more than six decades. Today the base's annual impact is about 2,500 jobs, a payroll of $90 million and a total economic impact of nearly $280 million.

It's important to acknowledge the men and women of the Air Force and their service to the nation and to our community. Air Force personnel were critical to the flood fight, and Air Force volunteers show up for many civic events.

We think of the Air Force as a vital, vibrant part of our community, and we've rallied to ensure that the base remains in our future – and grows with us. ■

Feeding Our People

Farming is the basis of the local economy and the Grand Forks region helps to feed the world.

Our soils are among the most fertile in the world; and today the two-counties in the Grand Forks metropolitan area sustain 2,500 farms producing more than two billion worth of crops every year.

You read that right. Those are big numbers.

The crops grown here fall into two broad categories, row crops and grains. Most important among the grains are wheat and barley -- wheat the source of bread and barley the source of beer. Among the row crops, sugar is king. It's not the most widely planted crop around here, but it is the most valuable, both on the farm and to the people who process it. Sugar is a major industry in our valley. Potatoes have long held second place among row crops and the Red River Valley is famous for the quality of its potatoes, which go into chips and french fries and are shipped around the country for seed stock. Soybeans have lately become a major crop here, corn acreage is increasing. A major potato processing plant have a development that will bring over 100 jobs and use many tons of potatoes. The Valley's farmers also grow sunflowers and dry beans -- navy beans, pinto beans and several other kinds of beans. Sunflowers make a high-quality cooking oil. The beans are mostly exported to Great Britain -- big bean eaters, the Brits -- and Mexico. Small producers are important, too. Every Saturday in the summer months, fresh produce from area growers is available at Farmers Market in Town Square in downtown Grand Forks.

Bottom line here: You should raise your glass to local agriculture when you order a beer, a salad, a sandwich or dessert.

In the last little while, something called "precision agriculture" has taken center stage in farm fields in the Red River Valley. The term refers to the increasing tendency to apply technology at just the right time and in just the right place -- with complete precision, in other words, to improve yields and to help feed the world.

Of course, farming is not just about growing crops. It's about processing them and marketing them, too.

This has been a challenge for Red River Valley farmers. Much of what they grow is shipped away to be made into food. Still, several local companies have bucked this trend.

The North Dakota Mill and Elevator is one of these. It's owned by the state, a gift of the state's populist past. Today, it's one of the largest flour mills in the world.

J.R. Simplot, an enormous potato growing and processing enterprise, has a factory here. It's new freezer has changed the skyline along Gateway Drive.

Pasta is made here.... and mustard, too.

And there's American Crystal Sugar, the nation's first sugar cooperative. It's owned by 2,900 farmers in the Red River Valley.

Together, they raise sugar beets on 500,000 acres. Today American Crystal Sugar refines more sugar from sugar beets than any other company in the United States. It's a point of pride with us that beet farmers made their decision to buy the company in East Grand Forks. That was over 50 years ago, in 1973.

Local food processors are an innovative bunch. Three sisters got together with a biosciences firm and created the Three Farm Daughters label, which appears on packages of pasta and flour – higher in protein, higher in fiber and lower in calories. Look for it at local groceries.

Looking ahead a new soybean processing plant is set to open in 2028. ■

Shopping Destinations

Grand Forks and East Grand Forks are destinations within these destinations.

Columbia Mall is near the interstate highway on 32nd Avenue. JC Penney and Scheels are anchor stores.

The avenue itself is lined with retail establishments and eating places. We call this area The Market Place.

Among the large outlets are Lowe's, Super Target, Best Buy, Michaels, Hobby Lobby. Nearby are Sam's Club and a Super WalMart as well as Kohl's, and Menards.

Hugo's Supermarkets are headquartered in Grand Forks with five locations in Grand Forks/East Grand Forks.

The Midtown District on Washington Street has a large antique mall, a general interest bookstore, an Asian grocery, a hardware store and a computer sales and service establishment, Raptor PCS.

There's a developing retail area on Gateway Drive at the northwest edge of town. It's anchored by a WalMart store.

In downtown East Grand Forks, there's a Bass Pro Shops outlet. It's something more than a store, with educational and entertainment attractions, including mounted game animals and live fish.

Across the street is a 15-screen theater with stadium seating, rocker seats and moveable arm rests. River Cities Cinema anchors a mall that contains a unique health club & spa and a variety of boutique and curio stores.

Up North Pizza Pub and the Spud Jr. are just down the street.

Along the Boardwalk facing the Red River there's Restaurant Row, with such local outlets as Mike's Pizza, the Blue Moose; a rustic, Minnesota kind of place, and Molly Yeh from the Food Channel's first restaurant Bernie's

Across the river in downtown Grand Forks another destination shopping area is developing, with specialty boutiques, great tasty treats and funky art spaces. ■

Eating & Sleeping

The 5 Star Olive Ann Boutique Hotel complete with valet parking recently opened downtown.

Downtown Grand Forks has eating options, too, including several fine dining establishments. The Toasted Frog offers an innovative menu of new cuisine; Skies 322 Fine Dining has a central European flair, Ely's Ivy offers fresh and local ingredients. New downtown is Harry's Steakhouse, which just might be the best steakhouse west of New York. These four are located within a few blocks of each other. It's possible to start with cocktails and appetizers in one, enjoy an entrée in a second and desert and after dinner drinks in the third.

Japanese eateries, like Asian food is plentiful with Japanese restaurants downtown, on South Washington Street and on 32nd Avenue South. There's Thai food, too. And Indian food. And Somali food. In the summer, the food trucks come out. For Mexican food, there's Charras on 32nd Avenue South, Mexican Village and Paradiso, and Little Bangkok and two McDonalds on South Washington, and Casa Mexico near the junction of U.S. 2 and Minnesota 220 in East Grand Forks.

The Mall area also has favorites like Texas Roadhouse, The Ground Round, Buffalo Wild Wings, and Meg-A- Latte .

Historic downtown buildings feature brew pubs such as, Half Brothers, The TapRoom and favorites like Bonzers, Rhombus Guys and Spud Jr. The Urban Stampede offers coffee in a cozy atmosphere.

Fast food options and local outlets of national restaurant franchises are on South Washington, Gateway Drive, Columbia Road, 32nd Avenue and 42nd Street South, including Crisp & Green. Be sure to enjoy a cup of locally roasted "Bully Brew" coffee at one of their several locations.

Forty-second Street has developed into a destination area of another kind. That's where you'll find many of the city's hotels, including Canad Inns with its three restaurants, Grand Forks Lodge and Suites, Sleep Inn & Suites, Staybridge Suites, My Place Hotels, Spring Hill Suites, Baymont Inn & Suites and the Hilton Garden Inn.

Local favorites are scattered about. Perkins on Columbia Road and Helix Wine & Bites on South Washington near the newest area expanding with housing, shopping and a hockey arena. On the North End, there's Darcy's Cafe, a smallish place that's often packed with locals who want lots of good food and head to the Near North Neighborhood and you'll find long time local favorite The Fabulous Kegs Drive-In. Speedway 805, a retro roadhouse, is on North 42nd Street.

Probably your best bet is to load the family in the car and explore the city's thoroughfares. You'll be sure to find a restaurant you like.

Oh! The Olive Garden restaurant that made local food writer Marilyn Hagerty an Internet celebrity. That's on 32nd Avenue South, too. ■

Educating Our Community

UND

The University of North Dakota – founded in 1883 – is the oldest and largest university in North Dakota.

In 141 years, it has granted more than 103,000 degrees. You've heard of some of UND's alums:

Phil Jackson, basketball coach with six NBA championships to his name.

Karen Nyberg, astronaut.

Sam Anderson, award-winning Hollywood character actor of Forrester Gump and TV's Matlock fame (2025).

Sally Smith, who took Buffalo Wild Wings from 35 locations in 1994 to 1,175 by 2016.

Dave St. Peter, former president of the Minnesota Twins.

Minnesota Viking great Jim Kleinsasser. Matt Greene, LA Kings defenseman and Stanley Cup winner – among a long list of more than 100 NHL players, including Jonathan Toews, Eddie Belfour, Zach Parise, T.J. Oshie and Brock Boeser. Also, Monique Lamoureux-Morando and Jocelyne Lamoureux-Davidson, the Grand Forks twin sisters who won Olympic gold with the U.S. Women's Hockey Team in 2018.

And these are only the recent alums.

Go back a little farther and you'll find Maxwell Anderson, Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright; Ernest Thompson, editor of Life magazine; Era Belle Thompson, editor of Ebony magazine; and Vilhjalmur Stefansson and pioneering aviator Carl Ben Eielson, both of whom were legendary Arctic explorers.

Plus, enough senators, governors, legislative leaders and members of Congress to fill a bus. They've served several states.

All of them were drawn to Grand Forks by the quality of the University and its many programs – nearly 250 fields of study and growing every year. Among the most recent additions are digital journalism, artificial intelligence, cyber security and data science, space and national security, plus biomedical, aerospace and petroleum engineering. All are examples of how UND responds to changing regional and global conditions.

The University is built on a strong foundation of liberal arts. The goal is to help students acquire and evaluate knowledge, to become creative and productive citizens in their communities and nations.

The Washington Monthly and U.S. News & World Report have ranked UND consistently above other colleges on the Great Plains, and the University has earned a reputation as the broadest and strongest education available between the Twin Cities and the Pacific Northwest.

As a result, and in defiance of national trends, enrollment has increased. Partly that's due to strong online offerings. In addition, the campus has been remade, with several large, new buildings including the Memorial Student Union – dedicated to UND students and alums who gave their lives in service to our country – and the Nistler College of Business building, made possible by a gift from alum Werner Nistler, creator of the Travelodge motel franchise.

The Medical School has a new building. The Law School Building has been enlarged. Chester Fritz Library – the largest in the state – has gotten even bigger and more modern.

And the cranes keep swinging. Now in the design stage is a proposed STEM Complex, a three-story, $163 million building that will house – and promote collaboration between – UND's many STEM departments across two Colleges (Engineering & Mines and Arts & Sciences) and in subjects that include chemistry, data science, physics and engineering.

Then there's the transformed Athletics District. With its new Albrecht Field for softball, new turf on the football practice field, new athletics administration building and new fieldhouse and sports performance center (locker rooms, physical fitness facilities and sports medicine), the district will help UND athletes get bigger, stronger, faster and continue setting UND apart from other universities in the region.

Did we mention Merrifield Hall, the University's largest classroom building that now – thanks to a $55 million renovation – has been completely redone?

UND offers baccalaureate degrees in 89 areas, master's degrees in 58 programs and doctoral degrees in 34.

It's one of a handful of universities that have both a School of Law and a School of Medicine. Even fewer can boast of an aerospace school, and none can top the John D. Odegard School of Aerospace Sciences at UND. As home of one of the largest fleets of civilian aircraft in North America, UND Aerospace trains crewed and uncrewed pilots, air traffic controllers, environmental and atmospheric scientists and space systems engineers and support staff for jobs all over the world.

In addition, there are the colleges of Arts & Sciences, Business & Public Administration, Education & Human Development, Nursing & Professional Disciplines, Engineering & Mines, and Graduate Studies – a total of nine degree-granting schools and colleges in all.

The campus also is home to the Energy & Environmental Research Center (EERC). The EERC's roots date back to the 1890s when Earl Babcock, a UND chemistry professor, began studying the state's vast lignite coal resources and investigating potential uses for them.

The Center got its official start in 1951 as a federal facility under the U.S. Bureau of Mines. It became a U.S. Department of Energy technology center in 1977, and in 1983, it officially became part of UND.

The EERC has evolved to conduct research on all fossil fuels, as well as renewable and alternative fuels, and has become a world leader in pollution prevention and environmental cleanup technologies. In 2023, the EERC was awarded a nearly $1 billion federal grant as part of the Clean Energy Hydrogen Hubs Program.

With its vision to instill a sense of wonder, love of discovery and commitment to serve within its more than 15,000 students, UND has become a leader regionally and nationally. From the latest in medicine, engineering and aerospace technologies, extractive industries and transformative discoveries in the humanities and social sciences, our faculty and students continually push the boundaries of knowledge and innovation.

Making a difference, in other words – in students' lives and around the world. UND grads are truly "leaders in action." ■

Northland Community and Technical College's East Grand Forks campus is a vibrant hub for education, workforce development, and personal growth. Deeply rooted in Minnesota and paired with its Thief River Falls campus, Northland offers hands-on programs in healthcare, liberal arts, business, technology, aviation, skilled trades, and more!

Healthcare stands out with over 17 nursing and allied health programs, plus a range of applied science degrees that offer affordable, flexible pathways to Minnesota State universities and the University of North Dakota. Serving more than 3,000 students, from high schoolers exploring next steps to adults seeking a fresh start, Northland fosters a welcoming, supportive learning environment, guided by 250+ dedicated faculty and staff.

Through strong partnerships with area employers, Northland fuels regional innovation and opportunity. For new families and businesses, it's not just a college; it's a cornerstone of community growth and lifelong success.

Still more learning

We haven't exhausted the list of local educational institutions. Not yet.

We're still uncovering gems in our region's educational landscape - like the University of Minnesota Crookston, located just 25 miles away. This four-year campus enrolls around 1,700 students and is part of the University of Minnesota system. Founded in 1966 and offering baccalaureate degrees since 1993, U of M Crookston is known for its forward-thinking approach. With more than 75 degree programs offered on-campus and online, the university combines flexibility with academic excellence. From being one of the first to provide laptops to every student, to emphasizing real-world, hands-on learning, the campus continues to innovate as a hub of opportunity, leadership, and community engagement in northwestern Minnesota.

The University of Mary, a Catholic college whose campus is near Bismarck, N.D., has a satellite location in Grand Forks. Students enroll in one-night-a-week, face-to-face classes or classes that are offered online around the clock and around the year. Advanced degrees can be completed in as few as 15 months. Students may switch seamlessly between delivery systems, from online to on site or on site to online.

Lake Region State College (LRSC) may be based in Devils Lake but has a physical presence in the Greater Grand Forks area.

Nursing education is offered in Grand Forks in the lower level of Altru Clinic at 1300 South Columbia. Students can enroll in practical nurse and associate degree (RN) programs. LRSC works with area employers on apprenticeships in various career fields including nursing and surgical technology. The one semester peace officer training program is delivered each fall in Grand Forks in partnership with area law enforcement.

Courses and full degree programs are offered at the education center on Grand Forks Air Force Base. All area residents can participate in the course offerings on GFAFB.

The college's workforce training division, TrainND, can offer a multitude of employee education from interoffice communications, manager/supervisor sessions, or customized instruction.

Elementary and secondary education

Grand Forks and East Grand Forks are one community but involve two towns, two states and two ways of doing things. This is apparent in the public schools.

In East Grand Forks, four schools serve 12 grades. There's one school for kindergartners and first and second graders, another for Grades 3 through 5, a third for grades 6 through 8 and a high school. In East Grand Forks, these schools serve more than 2,000 students.

The public schools in Grand Forks are configured differently, with 12 elementary schools serving children in kindergarten through Grade 5, three middle schools service students in Grades 6 through 8 and two high schools. These schools educate more than 7,400 students, including those from Grand Forks Air Force Base.

Private schools are available, too. In East Grand Forks, Sacred Heart School offers pre-school through high school programs in a Catholic setting. In Grand Forks, there are two Catholic schools, St. Michael's and Holy Family, which provide education through Grade 6.

Riverside Christian School in East Grand Forks offers a program of education from pre-schools to Grade 12.

Grand Forks is also home to the North Dakota School for the Blind which provides services for North Dakotans with visual impairments and the Grand Forks Montessori Academy.

Whatever the case, we here in Grand Forks and East Grand Forks are proud of our schools. Annually, some of our students qualify for important scholarships such as Merit or Presidential scholarships. Average scores on ACT tests are higher here than both state and national averages.

And there's more coming!

Career Impact Academy opened in the fall of 2025. This will provide education and training for high school students in Grand Forks and seven rural school districts. The academy will also offer specialized job training for adults seeking to advance their skills or learn new ones.

A new Valley Middle School opened in January of 2026. A new Twining Elementary School will open on GFAFB in 2028. ■

Being Active

There's no excuse for sitting around in Grand Forks and East Grand Forks.

Outdoor enthusiasts will find plenty to do in the Greenway, a 2,200-acre space offering recreational opportunities along the Red and Red Lake Rivers in Grand Forks and East Grand Forks. Though hidden behind the flood levee, the Greenway is easily accessible, with entry points about every quarter mile along its 7 ½ mile stretch and several direct connections to the cities' 60+ mile shared-use path system.

The Greenway is open every season, every day. Over 20 miles of shared-use paths offer a scenic tour in a welcoming outdoor setting for walking, jogging, biking, and rollerblading. Two pedestrian-only bridges offer a seamless connection between the two communities (and some awesome views of the Red River, to boot).

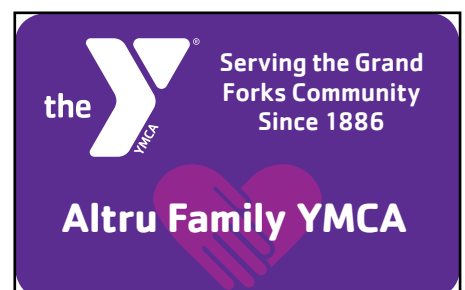

Summertime fun includes disc or foot golf, basketball, pickleball, horseshoes, swimming (in a pool, of course), playgrounds, and more. Not feeling that energetic? There's nothing wrong with that! There are plenty of low-key ways to enjoy time outdoors. May we suggest a visit to one of the many parks and picnic shelters sprinkled throughout the Greenway? Or maybe rest a bit on the many benches along the trails and watch the river go by.

The fun doesn't stop when the weather turns cold. Hearty outdoor enthusiasts will find plenty to do when the temperatures drop and the snow flies. Groomed snow trails offer cross-country skiers and fat tire cyclists over seven miles of adventure, while the opportunities for sledding, ice skating, and snowshoeing are seemingly endless. A groomed snowmobile trail is also available in certain areas.

The abundant natural spaces of the Greenway provide habitat for a variety of wildlife year-round. The Greenway is situated in the Central Flyway, so there's a good chance of seeing bald eagles, red-headed woodpeckers, and Cooper's hawks, to name a few of our feathered friends. Alert trail users will spot the many deer throughout the wooded areas. And we didn't forget our most popular four-legged friends, either. Two dog parks offer dog owners a safe, legal opportunity to exercise their pet off-leash within the city limits. Two fenced areas accommodate both small and large dogs.

Interested in some outdoor fun on the water? Fishing goes on all year round. Channel catfish are the river's claim to international fishing fame, but the Red and Red Lake Rivers have more than 70 species of native fish. The confluence of the rivers is an ice fishing destination. Canoe and kayak rentals are available on summer weekends at the Boathouse on the Red.

Grand Forks and East Grand Forks have five golf facilities, four of them public.

There are two 9-hole courses and two other 18-hole courses, one on each side of the Red River. Arnold Palmer and his team designed one of them, Kings Walk, which is the only PGA rated course in North Dakota or Manitoba. The course is operated by the Grand Forks Park District. It's open to the public.

The Grand Forks Country Club is a membership organization. It includes a restaurant and a pro shop.

In East Grand Forks, Valley Golf offers a unique layout that challenges all levels of golfers. The course has a pro shop, driving range, snack bar and banquet facilities with a full bar.

On the near south side in Grand Forks, there's Lincoln Golf Course, opened in 1909 and one of North Dakota's oldest golfing facilities. The course, originally an 18-hole course, was heavily damaged in the 1997 flood. Today it's a nine-hole par 35 course.

If you'd like to sleep under the stars and have a top-notch restaurant at your service, check out the Red River State Recreational Area on the East Grand Forks side of the river. In addition to hook-ups for recreational vehicles, the park offers remote camping and easy access to the river, whatever your physical condition. In all, there are 113 campsites, including 85 with electrical hook-ups.

All of this means a wide variety of recreation and fitness opportunities -- and we haven't mentioned the Choice Health and Fitness Center.

Operated by the Grand Forks Park District, this is a 161,000 square foot facility built on a 42 acre recreational park that includes hockey arenas and other venues.

Today, there are two basketball courts, three racquetball courts, an aquatics area including a three-lane lap pool and a zero-entry fun pool with two large slides and a dumping bay. There's more than 15,000 square feet devoted to cardio and fitness with state of the art equipment. There are four group exercise rooms offering specialty classes. You can walk or run indoors. One of the longest in the Midwest, the track requires only seven times around to make a mile in distance.

Choice is a partner with the Grand Forks YMCA located near downtown. As part of the campaign to build Choice Fitness Center, donors provided funds to update the Y, which now offers a wide variety of training and fitness activities.

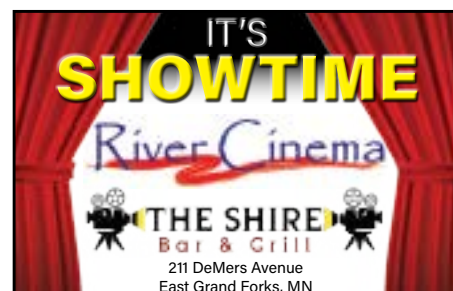

Rydell Skateboard Park is another option -- for the especially daring.

So -- to review -- more than 40 miles of walking and running trails, more than 30 miles of biking trails, fishing opportunities, outstanding nature watching, and two fitness centers.

In Grand Forks and East Grand Forks, you can hardly avoid being active.

Besides these opportunities for recreation on your own, Grand Forks and East Grand Forks have year-round programs for all ages. Park Board programs for hockey and soccer begin before children start school and include recreational opportunities for older youth as well as adults.

There's a full range of other organized play options, too, for young people in the school system and at UND, and for adults in softball leagues, bowling leagues and golf clubs. ■

Getting Together

Grand Forks is fortunate to have world class facilities.

There is The Ralph! You may know of Ralph Engelstad Arena. It's been described as "the finest facility of its kind in the world."

The 400,000 square foot arena is nothing but first class. Concourse floors are granite. Each seat is made of cherry wood and leather. There are 48 luxury suites, two mini suites and two great big club rooms at either end of the ice. The club bars are the largest in the state. Plus, there are more than 300 flat screen TV sets.

All of this to watch hockey.

The Ralph seats 11,634 for hockey, and there are seldom empty seats.

For players the arena offers a training facility including a 10,000 square foot weight room, an underwater treadmill, 14 locker rooms and a second ice sheet, this one Olympic sized.

No wonder so many young people in the community dream of playing there.

The Ralph is more than a hockey arena. It's an international venue, hosting hockey and curling tournaments.

Plus, it's a concert venue, hosting such stars as Kenny Chesney, Carrie Underwood, Brad Paisley, Tim McGraw, Faith Hill and Elton John.

You can shop at the Ralph, too. The in-house boutique has a dazzling array of UND regalia.

The Betty is attached to The Ralph. Betty Engelstad Sioux Center is home to UND basketball and volleyball programs.

The Ralph is named for Ralph Engelstad and the Betty for his wife. Engelstad was the goalie on UND's first national championship hockey team who became a real estate developer and hotel and casino operator in Las Vegas. He gave the community more than $110 million for the buildings.

The Chester Fritz Performing Arts Center, a magnificent center for the performing arts, is considered the finest facility of its kind from Minneapolis to the West Coast.

The arena provides diverse and quality entertainment with events of all kinds ranging from family shows to comedians to rodeos to concerts, such as Metallica, Zach Bryan, and Britney Spears.

Then there's Art in the Park in University Park.

This venue draws more than 160 artists and performers as well as unique food facilities. It's held in early June every year.

Every fall the East Grand Forks Arts and Crafts Council organizes the area's largest craft show spread out between the two largest arenas in East Grand Forks with hundreds of vendors.

Looking for a fair or a festival?

Check out the Grand Forks County Fair. Held each June at the historic fairgrounds.

The grandstand was dedicated by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt. There are 4-H exhibits, a livestock show, commercial booths, home arts exhibits, concerts and a carnival midway.

Check out Catfish Days. This is a nationally known tournament held on the Red River. A total of 250 anglers in 125 teams compete to see who catches the biggest of the big Red River channel cats.

Cats Incredible usually takes place in early August.

Later in August, East Grand Forks rolls out its Heritage Days. This event emphasizes heritage and tradition and includes antique tractors and machinery, a general store with penny candy, an ice cream parlor and steam threshing, log sawing, blacksmithing and other attractions.

September brings UND's annual Potato Bowl with such extravaganzas as a French Fry Feed. And a football game of course.

In November there's a HollyDazzle festival of lights, with a parade and fireworks downtown. That kicks off the holiday season here. ■

Arts & Culture

Appreciating the Arts

The range of arts activity in Grand Forks and East Grand Forks that one local wag once referred to the community as “The Athens of the Prairie.”

He wasn't far off.

There are no classic ruins here, but there is a lively arts community.

A string of alliterative words apply to the arts scene locally.

Electric.

Energetic.

Entrepreneurial.

Excellent.

The Greater Grand Forks Symphony Orchestra is one of the oldest in the United States west of the Mississippi River. It's been performing for more than a century.

The Northern Valley Youth Orchestra involves 25 adult musicians who mentor and coach more than 125 young people.

There's also a community band, which offers outdoor concerts in the summer.

Other local groups are the Grand Forks Children's Choir and the Master Chorale. The Chorale's concerts have become season toppers and social events. Each December, members host a “Sing along Messiah” that's classic and a lot of fun.

UND's Music Department showcases its choirs at Winter WUNDERland, also in December.

UND contributes to the community's cultural life with theater, performed at Burtress Theater, named for its donor, a long-time member of the U.S. House of Representatives whose home on Reeves Drive is a classic of Victorian architecture in the city.

The high schools, too, have well developed music and theater traditions. The performance space at Red River High School in Grand Forks is especially fine.

SPA, the Summer Performing Arts program, draws students into doing and not just watching. Their performances are first rate. You'll be dazzled.

hosts summer workshops for young people, too. Housed in an historic building on the UND campus, the NDMOA is the state's official art museum. For nearly half a century, it has presented cutting edge exhibits examining issues from rapid oil development to "the disappeared" in Argentina.

NDMOA has drawn international attention. Artist Barton Benes left his Manhattan apartment to the Museum. It's on display on the second floor.

The visual arts are well represented elsewhere in the city.

UND displays its collections on a rotating basis in space at the Empire Arts Center downtown. Downtown also has several private galleries and artist studios.

The Public Arts Commission has two galleries. One at Altru South and the other is at the Alerus Center. Recently, The Public Arts Commission dedicated a 150-ton granite sculpture, "Prairie Rose." Master sculptor Zoran Mojsilov was commissioned for the project. It sits on 42nd Street in front of the Canad Inn. Have a close look. At first you'll be puzzled – but the dazzle will grip you soon enough.

Those who want to work in clay will find Muddy Waters Clay Center, classes, hands-on experience and shopping opportunities year around.

Downtown you'll find Badman Design, where fine jewelry and display art are crafted and shipped around the continent.

Likewise performing arts.

The Empire Theatre in downtown Grand Forks is a venue for a wide range of performance, from stage shows to symphony concerts and films. The historic Firehall Theatre is home to Greater Grand Forks Community Theater.

East Grand Forks has its performance arts center, too, and it showcases talent of many kinds: Celtic, cowboy, classical.

The North Dakota Ballet Company has classes for all ages and regular performances.

Dance etc! provides classes in jazz, tap, ballet and hip hop. Dancers perform at two yearly recitals and at special events throughout the community. ■

Sharing Cultures

These communities are increasingly diverse, and we are learning about one another and growing together.

UND's International Center hosts a major celebration of cultural diversity each year. The Feast of Nations is named literally for the culinary and cultural offerings from around the world. It's a highlight of the winter season in Grand Forks.

Another highlight, this time of spring, is the annual Wacipi mounted by the local American Indian community. This "time out" includes a traditional powwow and educational forums on native culture.

Plus, there are ethnic festivals involving the many European immigrant communities: Norwegians, Swedes, German, Poles, Irish and Scots among us. ■

Reading & Writing

One of the Midwest's premiere literary events takes place in Grand Forks each March, as it has since 1970

UND's annual Writer's Conference has brought more than 325 writers to Grand Forks, including four Nobel laureates and 32 Pulitzer Prize winners.

The list of guests is dazzling. Among these authors who have attended and taken part are some of the most influential of the 20th and 21st centuries, including Allen Ginsberg, Norman Mailer, Tom Wolfe, Alice Walker, Tony Kushner, Salman Rusdie, Eudora Welty, Joseph Brodsky, August Wilson. The list goes on.

Nor has the event overlooked local authors, bringing Larry Woiwode and Lois Erdrich, whose literary landscapes are our own.

The three-day-long conference offers opportunities to hear writers read their work, discuss their work and defend their work.

Readings of fiction, non-fiction and poetry occur at other venues, including NDMOA, local bookstores and coffee shops.

Both Grand Forks and East Grand Forks have public libraries.

In East Grand Forks the Campbell Library is housed in a new building made possible by the flood of books that arrived here when Americans realized that a library had been drowned in the Red River Flood of 1997.

Discover the place where curiosity and community collide. Grand Forks Public_ invites all ages to explore, learn, and enjoy! The first floor, remodeled in 2020, features a stunning front desk made of old book spines, colorful and creative spaces, a computer zone, teen space with video games, study areas, and a 220-gallon aquarium with a library-flag-carrying diver. A soundproof privacy booth offers a quiet retreat.

Upstairs, transformed in 2023, is a children's wonderland with Myra's Treehouse for play and discovery. Cozy seating, a giant pink swirly slide connecting the floors, and large wooden swings make this a true playground for curious minds. Outside, the Musical Playground amps up the fun.

Beyond books, Grand Forks Public_ offers audiobooks, eBooks, DVDs, music CDs, films, video games, board games, magazines, newspapers, park passes, technology, LEGO kits, radon testers, memory kits, hobby tryout kits, telescopes, and more!

Programming includes interactive storytimes, book clubs, free movies, craft classes, and niche events that foster community connections. Check out the website (gflibrary.com), follow on social media, or visit the library to see what's happening each month.

Follow your curiosity at Grand Forks Public! It's on Library Circle off South Washington.

In addition to these public libraries, UND's libraries include a medical and a law library that are second to none in the region, as well as the main campus library. This is named for Chester Fritz, an alumnus who became a trader in China and left the university a valuable collection of manuscripts and works of art. The library completed a renovation and expansion in 2021.

Beyond these, there are library services at the North Dakota School for the Blind's Vision Resource Center, at local schools and hospitals.

Grand Forks also boasts the first iBrary, a digital media library consisting of computers and tablets. The iBrary is located in the public housing area of town and plans are to add another half dozen around town. ■

The local United Way maintains a volunteer hot line.

More than a dozen service clubs are active in a range of activities, from providing coats for needy children and pajamas for threatened women to providing fireworks for the Fourth of July.

The local YPs -- short for "Young Professionals" -- are especially active, hosting social, professional, cultural and philanthropic events throughout the year.

YP is primarily a networking group, engaging young professionals in the community. Their mission statement says, "We enhance our community, create connections and invest in each other." ■

Living Together

By now we hope you're feeling good about Grand Forks and East Grand Forks and that you're thinking you might like to join our progressive community.

Of course, you'll need a place to live.

That's been a pressing problem here, as our economy expands and our population grows.

So, it might take some effort to find exactly what you want.

Local builders are working hard to meet the housing needs, and there are a number of new developments running from starter homes to luxury living. You may choose from single-family homes, condos, town houses, twin homes and apartments. If you're a student, the dormitories may be an option.

The point is you will find a place to live.

And you can afford it.

Local lenders offer a range of financing programs and are eager to help you find the right package, be it a conventional mortgage, a VA financed mortgage and FHA loan, or a first-time home buyers loan or an American Dream package, there's a housing option available.

Governing ourselves and keeping safe

Government is everybody's business in North Dakota and Minnesota. The states have some of the most comprehensive open meetings and open records laws in the nation.

The sun never sets on North Dakota government.

Except for very specific reasons, usually involving personnel decisions or proprietary secrets, every North Dakota government meeting is open. Every record is available to any citizen.

What's more, every public meeting must be announced in advance. Notices are published in newspapers and posted online.

One result is an extraordinary level of participation in government and trust in government. North Dakota elects more of its official than almost any other state. Initiative and referendum are highly developed here. In the November 2014 elections, there were eight measures on the ballot.

Voters sifted through them — and rejected all but one.

Another result of openness is a very high level of trust in government, the highest in the nation according to a recent survey.

North Dakotans know their government officials. Almost invariably, they call them by their first names: Kelly, John, Kevin, Julie.

They're our neighbors after all. Midwesterners in general, and North Dakotans and Greater Minnesotans in particular, pride ourselves on our civil society. We respect each other, even like each other, even when we disagree.

The civil society works here.

One bit of evidence is the crime rate. Grand Forks and East Grand Forks are among the safest places in the nation. Of course, crime happens. We are humans after all. But, the crime index here is much lower than the national average for metropolitan statistical areas.

Policing here is community focused. In East Grand Forks, 20 officers work with the public and local schools. The Grand Forks force is larger, 80 officers and seven community relations officers who are assigned to each of the city's seven wards.

It's an example of effective government. On the street.

The City of Grand Forks recently received a federal grant to expand its air service and local businesses contributed 2/5ths of the local matching funds.

In 2026 expect to see expanded air service at GFK. In 2024 a new cross winds runway opened at GFK improving safety and airport reliability.

Both were led by members of the City Council. Both are examples of government responding to real needs in real time.

It's sometimes hard to say it, but responsive government is one of our great strengths.

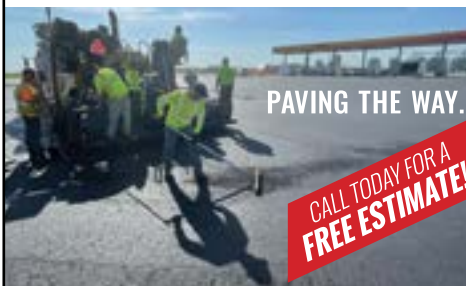

Even if some of us think government doesn't respond quickly enough and others think it responds too much. ■

Growing Together

Grand Forks is growing. The 2020 census found just over 100,000 people in the metropolitan area. A little more than half live in the city of Grand Forks.

There are more than 2,500 businesses in the Grand Forks Metropolitan Statistical Area, and they employ nearly 60,000 people.

We've already met some of the major employers: UND, Altru Health System, the financial community, agribusinesses.

Grand Forks is also an important center for engineering, environmental and architectural services. More than a dozen firms are headquartered here employing over 500 locally and another 400 in offices in other cities and states. That's only one example of the many "brainpower companies" in our communities. There are many others.

Other local companies make their own contributions to the cutting edge, from private aircraft to turbines for windmills that generate energy. Another local company is developing vaccines against a range of diseases, including Ebola, at a lab on the UND campus.

At the Grand Sky park on Grand Forks Air Force Base, companies are beginning to develop the future of aviation using unmanned aerial systems. Familiar names like Northrop Grumman and General Atomics are located there.

These developments add to the diversity and dynamism of our community.

We expect to grow.

We hope you will want to join us as we continue to build one of America's best small cities.

For all of us.

Including you and your family.

There's activity here for your interests.

There are services here to meet your needs.

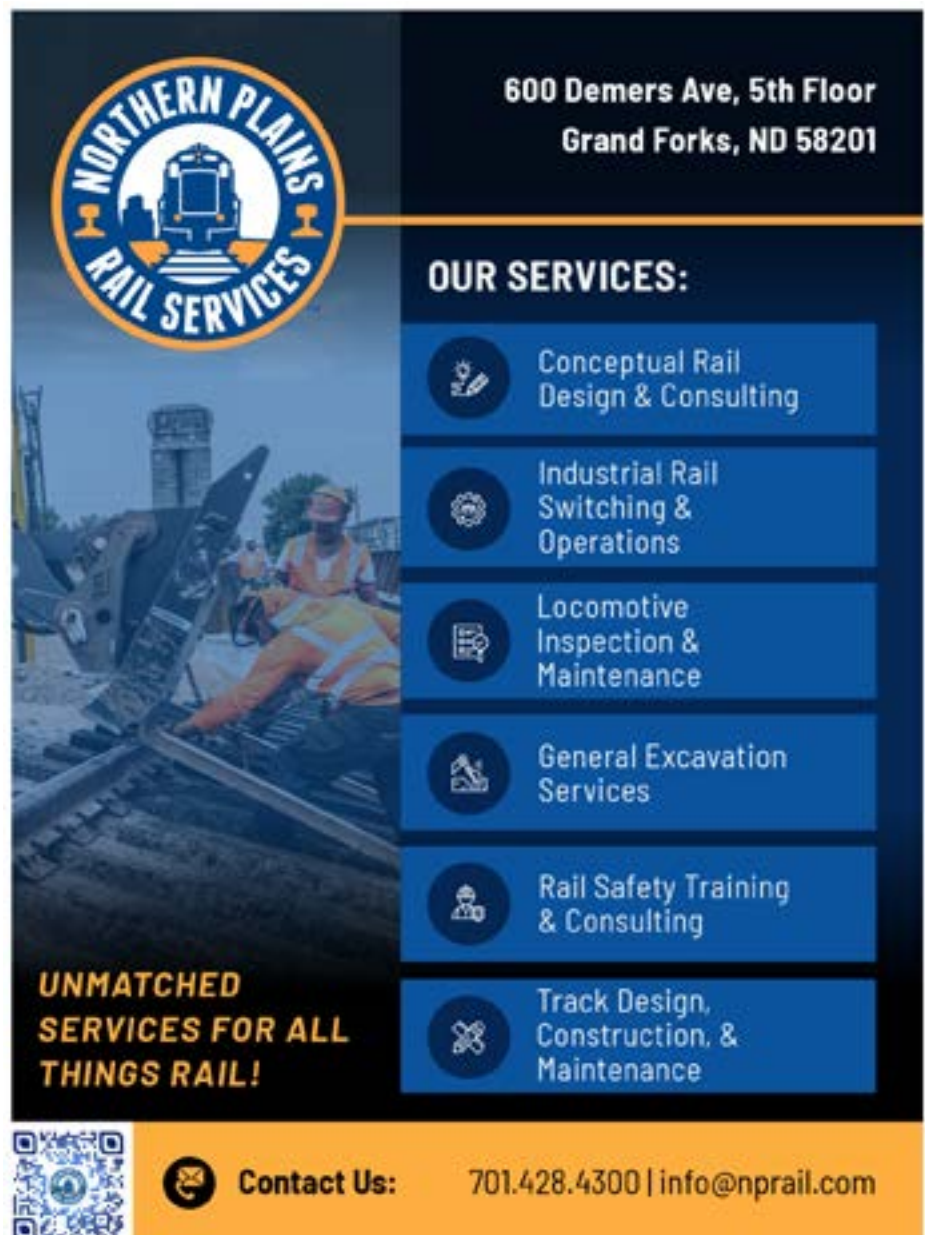

There's room here for your dreams.

Welcome.

Come, grow with us.

Settle in with us.

And prepare to be dazzled. ■
