At a time when making significant purchases has become as easy as clicking a button, The Warehouse Mill Valley is bringing personality and flair back to your shopping routine. We are a fresh take on a home-goods store, located in a factory-style warehouse and curated to offer unique, antique, modern, timeless pieces that will help make your space your own. Our storefront is meant to inspire: we want you to walk through the space and imagine yourself at home. We hope you will find joy in our pieces, and that they stir in you the same enthusiasm we felt when we first laid eyes on them. Each item has a story, one that our team will always be more than happy to tell.

Have you ever spent a day at Ikea, pulling your hair out under fluorescent lighting and being shoved out of the way by a young couple on the verge of a furniture-fueled breakup? We hope to offer you the complete opposite of that experience. We'll do so with music, natural light, ever-changing vignettes, and a large outdoor patio chock-full of curated goodness. Our price points and personal shopping experience will make the entire process as quick and seamless as you'd like it to be... And rather than mindlessly scrolling through a computer screen or spending hours building your somehow-already-broken armoire, our items are available for an immediate vibe-check. Cozy up on our couches, see our silver displayed intentionally next to hand-selected glassware in a cabinet that can easily be transported to your kitchen in mere hours. Forget waiting weeks for delivery and assembly, we have what you need to transform your space by the end of the day.

Since the 1990s, the American market has been awash with inexpensive home goods made in low-wage overseas factories, designed to last only a few years. This affordable furniture makes it convenient to redecorate regularly, since we can toss everything out with each move without feeling money-guilt. This "convenience" comes at a great environmental cost. Building and shipping a single piece of furniture (Amazon, Target, Wayfair) emits an estimated 90 kilograms of carbon, the equivalent of flying a Boeing 747 for an hour. And Americans throw out 12 million tons of furniture annually, up from 2 million tons in 1960, which clogs our landfills and wastes the wood, metal, plastic, and energy required to create it.

The good news: at The Warehouse we are making it easy to buy and sell used furniture, allowing consumers to reduce the environmental footprint of furnishing their homes. Our consigned furniture, art, and home accessories are from Marin's finest homes, manufacturer's samples, prototypes, and closeouts. All at consignment pricing! Whether you're selling furniture, art and accessories OR buying them, The Warehouse is here for you.

Answers to FAQ's

What Is Your Return Policy?

Our entire showroom is filled with product brought to us and owned by consignors. Once an item sells, we immediately compensate the consignor. As such, we are unable to offer refunds or exchanges. This is why we offer our customers a free 24-hour hold on many of the items in our stores. If you find something you love, let our staff know and we will place a yellow label on the item(s), deeming it off limits to the rest of our customers.

Will You Hold an Item for Me?

Yes! We offer free 24-hour holds for when you fall in love with something in one of our stores and want dibs. After 24 hours the item or items will be released and once again available to the thousands of customers coming into our locations every day to browse, shop, discover hidden treasures, and make purchases. So, grab what you can when you see it and we'll keep it safe so you can go home and find the perfect spot for your item(s) on hold for treasures you love.

Do You Offer Delivery? How Much Does It Cost?

We can put you in touch with transportation companies that offer special rates to pick up and deliver large consignment items.

Will You Help Load My Items If I Come to Pick Them Up?

The Warehouse team members are happy to help load small items into your vehicle. When you are buying furniture or other items, we do recommend making sure you have the proper transportation. The Warehouse staff do not disassemble items. Please bring proper tools, blankets, packing materials, rope, tie-downs, and more for transportation. We are always happy to help you make moving arrangements with local, reputable companies in the area as well.
